PEGASUS RACING

Pegasus Racing, Le Mans Series podium finishers, Michelin Green X Challenge race winners

Evolution, revolution: a double scoop for Pegasus Racing!

At the end of 2010, Pegasus Racing, the endurance squad from Alsace, hinted that it had a few big surprises in store for us for the start of the New Year. We are now in 2011 and it's time to lift the veil - or rather a corner of it - to see what's brewing in Strasbourg!

Evolution: two cars in the Le Mans Series

The team's involvement in the five rounds of the Le Mans Series will take the form of a two-car entry with the arrival of a Formula Le Mans prototype. In parallel, Pegasus Racing will continue to run its Courage in LM P2. This year it will be aiming for more podium finishes thanks to the arrival of a new engine, an HPD (Honda Performance Development) that complies with the new 2011 regulations. The team has also sent in an entry to the ACO for an invitation to take part in the 2011 Le Mans 24 Hours.

Revolution: A 100% electric prototype being completed at Pegasus Racing!

Partnerships have been signed with big companies specializing in the engineering and the production of electronics and electric engines in order to develop a zero emission prototype! This programme will be accompanied by a raft of initiatives respecting the environment, which will help Pegasus Racing to be among the pioneers in 21st century motor sport!

After its 2010 season marked by its first participation in the Le Mans 24 Hours, its maiden podium in LM P2 and a victory in the Michelin Green X Challenge (thermal efficiency), 2011 is going to be a very exciting year for Pegasus Racing. Watch this space!

For further clarity, the two main orientations of Pegasus Racing's 2011 strategy and their interfaces will be explained in two press releases:

- LMS/Le Mans 24 Hours on Wednesday 19th January
- Electric prototype programme on Monday 24th January

In the meantime, Julien Schell, driver and team co-owner is at your disposal to comment on the above as well as the team's possible return to 2-liter Group CN events. A happy New Year to you all and see you soon at the race track!
